

TECHNICAL COMMUNICATION

2019

SUMMIT

CONFERENCE & EXPO

GETTING THE MOST
FROM THE SUMMIT

Thank you for registering for STC's Technical Communication Summit.

The Summit offers all kinds of education, along with the opportunity to meet other people who "speak your language."

Please take a few minutes to review these slides so that you can get the most from your first experience at the Summit.

Tip #1: Plan a daily schedule

- Use the program to select a first choice session for each time slot.
- Select a second choice session for each time slot. Your first choice may not be what you expected. It's o.k. to leave a session.

Tip #2: Take advantage of “resources”

- Stay at the Hyatt Regency Denver to be close to the action all day! (STC's room block closes on 11 April.)
- Visit with the exhibitors in the Expo Hall.
- Introduce yourself to speakers you really like. They'll appreciate the positive feedback!
- Use the conference app in conjunction with the printed program. Both are excellent sources of information.

Tip #3: Network-Everyone is doing it!

Networking starters.....

- Hi! I'm (your name) from (city, state, country).
Where are you from?
- This is the first time I've been to the Summit—
how about you?
- I'm really looking forward to (session/presenter). What else do you recommend?

NETWORKING OPPORTUNITIES:

- The Rocky Mountain Chapter has planned some fun stuff!

USE THE CONFERENCE APP

- You'll be able to connect with other Summit attendees.

Tip #4: Follow conference “etiquette”

- Wear your nametag where it can be seen. This will help others remember your name, and badge checkers will let you in the special events!
- Don't let your cell phone/mobile device annoy others.

Other helpful tips:

- Set-up and use the conference app. This will enable you to connect with other attendees.
- Dress to be comfortable, but remember you'll be in large meeting rooms where the AC takes a while to adjust.
- It's o.k. to give yourself a break and skip a session.
- Stop by the Rocky Mountain Chapter Welcome table to find out about fun things to do in Denver. Say "Hello" to our friendly Rocky Mountain members!

Recognize yourself. Wear ribbons!
Ribbons available near the registration counter.
